

01-GS-43 VOTED: The Twenty-Third General Synod adopts the resolution “Access to Excellent Public Schools: A Child's Right in the 21st Century.”

ACCESS TO EXCELLENT PUBLIC SCHOOLS: A CHILD’S CIVIL RIGHT IN THE 21ST CENTURY

WHEREAS The National Education Association in its 2000–2001 resolution process declared “that public education is the cornerstone of our social, economic, and political structure and is of utmost significance in the development of our moral, ethical, spiritual, and cultural values”;<sup>1</sup> and

WHEREAS the Children’s Defense Fund declared that “equal educational opportunity is a myth in millennial America,” and that “overall, America’s children are not being educated to the high levels they have a right to expect”;<sup>2</sup> and

WHEREAS thirteen million—or one in five— American children live in poverty,<sup>3</sup> the overwhelming majority of whom attend schools that receive inequitable and inadequate school funding due to the dependence of poor school districts on limited property taxes to support public education; and

WHEREAS these school districts, out of ignorance and racism, tend to marginalize children and families who are not of the dominant culture; and

WHEREAS the public school population of students whose first language is other than English continues to increase, thus placing even more stress on struggling school districts; and

WHEREAS there is a severe shortage of well-qualified teachers, particularly in rural and urban areas, which further perpetuates injustice in the public school system; and

WHEREAS the propensity of the popular press is to bash public schools, public school teachers, and poor families, encouraging the latter to settle for false promises and over-simplistic “solutions” such as vouchers; and

WHEREAS funding for Title I and Title VII of the Federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act, which benefits poor children and the schools that serve them, is in severe jeopardy;

urges local churches to recruit new and uphold existing public educators, students, parents, school boards, and community leaders as activists for the civil right to excellent public education for all children;
